Effective Presentations Workshop

Presented by:
Audrey Ho

Thursday,
November 3, 2022

1:30-3:30 pm

Audrey will present a 40 minute talk on improving the effectiveness of our presentations.

At all levels of the institution we often find ourselves committed to public speaking opportunities – for example, graduate students must be prepared to defend their thesis and give talks. When we find ourselves in these scenarios, how do we best maintain the focus of our audience? What visual and body language cues can guide our listeners to a better understanding of the message we are conveying? This workshop will teach you to integrate tactful tricks into your presentations, from advice of industry persons and fellow academics.

REB Information Session

Presented by:
Nicole Gervais

Thursday,
April 20, 2023

2:30 - 4:00 pm

Getting approval from a Research Ethics Board (REB) is crucial for ethical research with human participants. The online MREB system can be overwhelming, but there are resources and templates to simplify the process.

Join us for a 1.5 hour interactive presentation on the research ethics approval process at Mac, presented by Nicole Gervais from the McMaster Research Ethics Board (MREB). You'll learn about the REB process, available resources for trainees, and tips and tricks to perfect your application and speed up approval.

Intro to LaTeX

Presented by:
Ethan Stollar

Thursday,
February 16, 2023

1:30-3:30 pm

Ethan will present a workshop on how to build basic documents using LaTeX.

Given the growing popularity of LaTeX in the academic world, it will be an important opportunity for students to acquire this skill for their research papers. Researchers may encounter problems with the requirement that all documents be submitted using the LaTeX template provided by JSL. Getting used to using LaTeX will help with future article submissions. Besides, it's fun to learn a new skill!
